A. J. OLSON IS CONTINUED AS FARM BUREAU HEAD

FRIENDS OF J. F. REED RECONSIDERED PLANS TO ENTER REED'S NAME

10TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF BUREAU HELD AT ST. PAUL THURSDAY

St. Paul, Jan. 18. — (UP)—A. J. Olson of Renville today held the leadership of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation after friends of J. F. Reed reconsidered plans to enter his name in the nominations at the close of the tenth annual convention here late Thursday.

It has been rumored that Thomas E. Cashman of Owatonna would nominate Reed in an attempt to return him to the office he resigned last fall to campaign for Governor Alfred E. Smith. Apparently the rumor was unfounded since Olson was re-elected without opposition.

Hagbarth Bue, Northfield, was chosen first vice president; H. M. Green, Crystal Lake second vice president, and Mrs. E. V. Ripley, Menasha, and M. E. Jacobson, Madison, were elected to the board of directors.

The federation adopted a legislative program previously outlined, which called for a farm board with powers as broad as the federal reserve board; segregation of exportable products from the domestic market; collection of a commodity fee, and a number of recommendations for state legislation.

Cashman, in a lengthy address, appealed to the farmers to assume the actual leadership in the fight for agricultural equality. He rapped the "Minnesota plan" for farm relief and charged that the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce was behind the plan. He also declared that the recently formed northwest agricultural foundation was "a picked group of politicians."

The Owatonna leader appealed to his listeners not to "eringly" accept the legislative crumbs "offered us by those who prevented us from securing equality for agriculture in 1927 and 1928."

DISCUSSION OCCUPIES ALL SENATE ATTENTION

MELLON SEEMS SLATED FOR RE-APPOINTMENT UNDER HOOVER

POSSIBILITY HIS NAME WILL COME BEFORE SENATE AFTER INAUGURATION

Washington, Jan. 18. — (UP) — Two members of the Coolidge cabinet, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Interior Roy West were brought under fire which occupied the entire day in the senate today.

Particular interest attended anti-Mellon attack because of reports that he is slated for re-appointment to the Hoover cabinet and the possibility that his name will come before the senate for confirmation after inauguration.

Independent republicans and democrats revived the old charges that the treasury secretary had failed to enforce prohibition and that he was not in sympathy with the law because of his previous stockholding affiliations with liquor manufacturers. They were preparing later in the day to renew also the charges that his department has been too generous in making tax refunds to large corporations.

West's nomination came up after weeks of delay when his friends urged action be taken on the public lands committee majority report recommending his confirmation. The leaders agreed to go into executive session at 3 P. M. to begin consideration of the nomination.

Washington, Jan. 18. — The fitness of Secretary of Treasury Andrew Mellon to continue in charge of prohibition enforcement was challenged by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, in debate today on the $25,000,000 additional prohibition enforcement appropriation proposed by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia.

Sen. Norris said partisan politics has honeycombed enforcement machinery and made administration of the Volstead act a mockery.

"Secretary Mellon writes the senate a letter and says we need a thorough survey of enforcement conditions," Norris said. "If after trying to enforce prohibition for eight years Secretary Mellon has just got around to the point where he has discovered a survey ought to be made it is fair to say he has been a failure in enforcing the law."

"Of course, it is said Secretary Mellon never has been a prohibitionist, but we ought not condemn an official solely because he is opposed to a law he is appointed to enforce. However, the result of eight years' enforcement under the present head of the department indicates to me he ought not be at its head."

The reconciliation never was completed. Mrs. Hamilton filed suit two days later.

DISCUSSION OCCUPIES ALL SENATE ATTENTION

MELLON SEEMS SLATED FOR RE-APPOINTMENT UNDER HOOVER

POSSIBILITY HIS NAME WILL COME BEFORE SENATE AFTER INAUGURATION

Washington, Jan. 18. — (UP) — Two members of the Coolidge cabinet, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Interior Roy West were brought under fire which occupied the entire day in the senate today.

Particular interest attended anti-Mellon attack because of reports that he is slated for re-appointment to the Hoover cabinet and the possibility that his name will come before the senate for confirmation after inauguration.

Independent republicans and democrats revived the old charges that the treasury secretary had failed to enforce prohibition and that he was not in sympathy with the law because of his previous stockholding affiliations with liquor manufacturers. They were preparing later in the day to renew also the charges that his department has been too generous in making tax refunds to large corporations.

West's nomination came up after weeks of delay when his friends urged action be taken on the public lands committee majority report recommending his confirmation. The leaders agreed to go into executive session at 3 P. M. to begin consideration of the nomination.

Washington, Jan. 18. — The fitness of Secretary of Treasury Andrew Mellon to continue in charge of prohibition enforcement was challenged by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, in debate today on the $25,000,000 additional prohibition enforcement appropriation proposed by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia.

Sen. Norris said partisan politics has honeycombed enforcement machinery and made administration of the Volstead act a mockery.

"Secretary Mellon writes the senate a letter and says we need a thorough survey of enforcement conditions," Norris said. "If after trying to enforce prohibition for eight years Secretary Mellon has just got around to the point where he has discovered a survey ought to be made it is fair to say he has been a failure in enforcing the law."

"Of course, it is said Secretary Mellon never has been a prohibitionist, but we ought not condemn an official solely because he is opposed to a law he is appointed to enforce. However, the result of eight years' enforcement under the present head of the department indicates to me he ought not be at its head."

Policeman Interrupts Reconciliation of Couple, Divorce Follows

Chicago, Jan. 18. — (UP)—Henry J. Hamilton, Jr., whose reconciliation with his estranged wife was interrupted when a policeman caught them "spooning" by the roadside, has been divorced. Mrs. Louis Hamilton charged her husband beat her.

Hamilton said he and his wife had been separated several months up until last September when he sought to effect a reconciliation. He said he and his wife were parked in their automobile by the roadside and that they were kissing and "making up" when the patrolman interrupted.

The reconciliation never was completed. Mrs. Hamilton filed suit two days later.

RESCUE WORKERS ABANDON HOPE TO SAVE COMRADE

Stenboville, O., Jan. 18. — (UP)—Rescue workers today abandoned hope of rescuing alive Pal Nick, 33, who was imprisoned in a mountain of earth and stone at the U. S. Coal company mine at Bradley yesterday. Mine officials said it would take about five days to tunnel through to the room in which the man is entombed.

A. J. OLSON IS CONTINUED AS FARM BUREAU HEAD

FRIENDS OF J. F. REED CONSIDERED PLANS TO ENTER REED'S NAME

10TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF BUREAU HELD AT ST. PAUL THURSDAY

St. Paul, Jan. 18. — (UP)—A. J. Olson of Renville today held the leadership of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation after friends of J. F. Reed reconsidered plans to enter his name in the nominations at the close of the tenth annual convention here late Thursday.

It has been rumored that Thomas E. Cashman of Owatonna would nominate Reed in an attempt to return him to the office he resigned last fall to campaign for Governor Alfred E. Smith. Apparently the rumor was unfounded since Olson was re-elected without opposition.

Hagbarth Bue, Northfield, was chosen first vice president; H. M. Green, Crystal Lake second vice president, and Mrs. E. V. Ripley, Menasha, and M. E. Jacobson, Madison, were elected to the board of directors.

The federation adopted a legislative program previously outlined, which called for a farm board with powers as broad as the federal reserve board; segregation of exportable products from the domestic market; collection of a commodity fee, and a number of recommendations for state legislation.

Cashman, in a lengthy address, appealed to the farmers to assume the actual leadership in the fight for agricultural equality. He rapped the "Minnesota plan" for farm relief and charged that the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce was behind the plan. He also declared that the recently formed northwest agricultural foundation was "a picked group of politicians."

The Owatonna leader appealed to his listeners not to "cringingly" accept the legislative crumbs "offered us by those who prevented us from securing equality for agriculture in 1927 and 1928."

INFLUENZA MUCH
MILDER THIS YEAR
THAN IN 1918

But Vicks Laboratories Again Operating Night and Day to Supply Record-Making Demand.

Although the type of flu this year is not so serious as in 1918, health authorities are urging everybody to treat even the slightest cold at the start, as colds lower the resistance and make the body an easy prey to bronchitis or pneumonia.

An interesting response to this warning has been the phenomenal call for Vicks VapoRub, the external treatment which proved so helpful in the 1918 epidemic.

In spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating all night long and are now producing 375,000 jars daily. A substantial part of this increase is attributed to the widespread use of Vicks as a preventive. —Adv.

INFLUENZA MUCH Milder This Year THAN IN 1918

But Vicks Laboratories Again Operating Night and Day to Supply Record-Making Demand.

Although the type of flu this year is not so serious as in 1918, health authorities are urging everybody to treat even the slightest cold at the start, as colds lower the resistance and make the body an easy prey to bronchitis or pneumonia.

An interesting response to this warning has been the phenomenal call for Vicks VapoRub, the external treatment which proved so helpful in the 1918 epidemic.

In spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating all night long and are now producing 375,000 jars daily. A substantial part of this increase is attributed to the widespread use of Vicks as a preventative.

The "beauty diet" that made her ugly

SHE was one girl who was going to stay attractive—so she watched her "beauty diet." But, all the time, she was missing something every diet should have. In the dishes she so carefully selected there was scarcely any roughage. Constipation gained a foothold. Soon, her charm, her strength—the very youth she thought to protect—were paying the price!

Thousands of women and men are paying the price of soft, fibreless meals. Many are dieting—and yet they defeat their own purposes because constipation continues to poison the system. No other evil is more widespread. It may start with aching heads and blemished cheeks. It often ends with serious trouble and disease.

And more's the pity when it can be so easily prevented by means of a simple cereal. So quickly relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring sure relief . . . safe prevention!

Part-bran products seldom contain enough bulk to be completely effective. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. It is 100% bran. It accomplishes results part-bran products cannot hope to equal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is infinitely better than habit-forming pills and laxatives.

A naturally healthful cereal! To enjoy with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added.

WHY CHOKES A GOLDEN GOOSE TO DEATH?

THE world is using more iron today than ever before in its history, says the Minneapolis Journal.

The greatest readily accessible deposits of iron ore on earth are right here in Minnesota.

Yet today the Minnesota iron industry is dying on its feet. Mines that should be open, are closed. Range towns that should be booming, are dwindling. Communities that should be prosperous, are watching a gradual shrinkage of the pay rolls that keep them alive. Not only that, but there is a growing danger that the industry will go clear to pot, once the operating companies finish skimming the remaining cream from the richer deposits.

Minnesota has been strangling, in a noose of taxation, the goose that lays the golden eggs. Seeking to save for public uses the public's due share of the heritage of wealth that nature so lavishly spread through the North country, Minnesota is in danger of making that heritage well nigh worthless. No industry can long survive, when taxes make up half its cost of doing business. Yet that is what Minnesota has been exacting of the iron ore industry.

There is no question of Minnesota's moral right to seize by taxation from wealth that comes out of the ground in the form of iron, a greater share than from the wealth that comes out of the ground in the form of crops. The principle underlying recapture of a part of a great natural resource, is sound enough. But it has been overworked. Tax has been piled upon tax, until the industry is threatened with extinction.

In the days when there existed no means for the State to levy on the output of ore, there was devised the alternative method of assessing ore in the ground at a higher percentage of its true value than any other property in Minnesota. And the ad valorem tax levied on this onerous assessment is repeated and repeated, year after year. Thus a man unfortunate enough to have one found under his land, is rather likely to see that land, and that ore, sold for taxes.

Came later the occupation tax, for the benefit of the State at large. Also for the benefit of the State at large, the royalty tax, originally intended to catch the ore owner, but passed on to the leasing operator, along with all the rest of the ore owner's taxes.

So the operator now pays local taxes on the ore in the ground out of all proportion to its value. He pays a fixed royalty to the ore owner for every ton taken out. He pays the State a six per cent tax on these royalties. If, after paying these taxes and royalties, and his operating expenses, he has anything left, the State takes six per cent of that as his occupation tax. On the sadly diminished remainder, the Federal Government collects an income tax.

Any wonder, then, that the operator is hurriedly stripping out the richest ore, preparatory to closing up shop, when this is gone?

Collapse of the ore industry would be a catastrophe for both the Range country and the State at large. Yet the ore industry is plainly headed for collapse, unless its tax burden is lightened.

The lion's share of the ad valorem tax money goes to the Range communities, which spend it freely and often foolishly. So tax relief can best be applied at that end of the line. The per capita limit on municipal expenditures, fixed a few years ago at $100 for municipalities and $60 for schools, was set too high. It should be reduced still further.

But equally important and necessary is the reduction of the assessment rate on ore in the ground. Before the royalty and occupation taxes were laid, there may have been an excuse for assessing ore bodies at fifty per cent of their actual value, in contrast with the lower percentages enjoyed by all other kinds of property. That excuse no longer exists. Unmined ore, against which an ad valorem tax is levied year after year until its value is eaten up, should be assessed at no greater percentage of its real worth than platted real estate, which gets a valuation of forty per cent. Quite possibly, the figure should be cut further still, to thirty-three and one-third per cent, the rate enjoyed by unplatted real estate.

Granting this urgently needed relief, will be no act of benevolence on the part of Minnesota. The State vitally needs a thriving ore industry. But the industry cannot thrive, if the State insists on choking it to death with a tax noose.

KEEPING STREETS CLEAR OF SNOW

THE city of Brainerd has had delivered a snow plow to be attached to a fast moving truck. This snow plow is to be used in cases of sudden snow storm where snow falls to a considerable depth.

Traffic conditions of today demand that streets be cleared of snow in order that automobiles and trucks can drive about the city without any hindrance as far as snowdrifts are concerned.

Inasmuch as these motor vehicles drive rather quickly it is incumbent that snow removal equipment be equally as speedy. The horse and buggy days are over.

The Brainerd city council early took cognizance of this fact. Its first efforts at snow removal were made with hired equipment. The council appreciated the wonderful work of Commissioner of Highways C. M. Babcock in inaugurating a snow removal campaign on the highways under his jurisdiction and the council thought it a matter of at least civic pride to clear Brainerd streets, especially in the business section, to meet these advances made in keeping highways open for winter traffic.

SNOW ON SIDEWALKS

THERE has always been a movement on foot to remove snow from sidewalks when snow has fallen to a considerable depth. During the past few days there have been several light falls of snow which has resulted in a condition on sidewalks consisting of tramped down snow.

This condition, as stated by City Engineer R. T. Campbell, who is also Street Commissioner, is undesirable. It would behoove our citizens to watch their sidewalks and when snow gets to an appreciable thickness to remove it. When this snow is not removed and a thaw comes on followed by a freeze, it causes an icy coating and accidents sometimes result.

As Street Commissioner, Mr. Campbell has authority to enforce the provisions of the ordinance calling for the removal of snow from sidewalks abutting private property.

MRS. N. MILLER HAS GAINED 26 POUNDS

Only Weighed 90 Pounds When She Began Taking Sargon. Has Taken Seventeen Bottles

"Since I began taking Sargon I have gained twenty-six pounds," was the remarkable statement made a few days ago by Mrs. Nellie Miller, residing at 407 N. Main St., Memphis, Tenn. Mrs. Miller is a prominent church worker.

"When I commenced taking Sargon I only weighed ninety pounds," she said, "and I now weigh one hundred and sixteen. I feel better than I have in ten years."

"For years I suffered with a bad form of stomach trouble, constipation and pains in my side. I became so weak I could hardly get around."

"I had no appetite at all scarcely, and what little I did eat caused gas on my stomach, and palpitation of the heart, headaches and dizzy spells. I was awfully nervous. I worried about myself until I could sleep and rest but little. I never knew what it was to retire at night without taking some kind of strong purgative."

"After I had given up all hope of ever being well again a friend of mine persuaded me to give Sargon a trial. I shall always thank this friend from the bottom of my heart, for Sargon helped me from the very first day. I have taken seventeen bottles of Sargon and now I feel like I have been made all over again."

"I now have a splendid appetite. These terrible pains in my side have disappeared and I sleep like a child. I am no longer nervous, and when I get up mornings I feel refreshed, cheerful and bright. I really feel as if I had started life all over again."

"I believe Sargon Soft Mass Pills had a lot to do with my recovery, and think they should always be taken in connection with Sargon. They are entirely different from any other laxative I ever took, because they are so mild and easy in action."

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd at H. P. Dunn; and in Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen. —adv.

WHY CHOKES A GOLDEN GOOSE TO DEATH?

THE world is using more iron today than ever before in its history, says the Minneapolis Journal.

The greatest readily accessible deposits of iron ore on earth are right here in Minnesota.

Yet today the Minnesota iron industry is dying on its feet. Mines that should be open, are closed. Range towns that should be booming, are dwindling. Communities that should be prosperous, are watching a gradual shrinkage of the pay rolls that keep them alive. Not only that, but there is a growing danger that the industry will go clear to pot, once the operating companies finish skimming the remaining cream from the richer deposits.

Minnesota has been strangling, in a noose of taxation, the goose that lays the golden eggs. Seeking to save for public uses the public's due share of the heritage of wealth that nature so lavishly spread through the North country, Minnesota is in danger of making that heritage well nigh worthless. ## MRS. N. MILLER HAS GAINED 26 POUNDS

Only Weighed 90 Pounds When She Began Taking Sargon. Has Taken Seventeen Bottles

"Since I began taking Sargon I have gained twenty-six pounds," was the remarkable statement made a few days ago by Mrs. Nellie Miller, residing at 407 N. Main St., Memphis, Tenn. Mrs. Miller is a prominent church worker.

"When I commenced taking Sargon I only weighed ninety pounds," she said, "and I now weigh one hundred and sixteen. I feel better than I have in ten years."

"For years I suffered with a bad form of stomach trouble, constipation and pains in my side. I became so weak I could hardly get around."

"I had no appetite at all scarcely, and what little I did eat caused gas on my stomach, and palpitation of the heart, headaches and dizzy spells. I was awfully nervous. I worried about myself until I could sleep and rest but little. I never knew what it was to retire at night without taking some kind of strong purgative."

"After I had given up all hope of ever being well again a friend of mine persuaded me to give Sargon a trial. I shall always thank this friend from the bottom of my heart, for Sargon helped me from the very first day. I have taken seventeen bottles of Sargon and now I feel like I have been made all over again."

"I now have a splendid appetite. These terrible pains in my side have disappeared and I sleep like a child. I am no longer nervous, and when I get up mornings I feel refreshed, cheerful and bright. I really feel as if I had started life all over again."

"I believe Sargon got me back on my feet to do with my recovery, and think they should always be taken in connection with Sargon. They are entirely different from any other laxative I ever took, because they are so mild and easy in action."

Sargon may be obtained in Brainerd at H. P. Dunn; and in Pequot from A. S. Rasmussen. —adv.

LITHE CUBAN KNOCKED OUT

JOEY SANGOR

NOW GIVEN EDGE OVER SANTIAGO BECAUSE OF STYLE OF FIGHTING

SANTIAGO IS DANGEROUS WITH EITHER HAND, HAS HARD RIGHT PUNCH

Chicago, Jan. 18. — (U.P.) — Tony Canzoneri, veteran of two championship campaigns, will be a slight favorite when he enters the ring tonight with Armand Santiago, the lithe Cuban who became prominent by knocking out Joey Sangor a few weeks ago.

The former featherweight champion was given the edge because of his style of fighting and his past experience in handling hard hitters.

Santiago is dangerous with either hand but he has a right punch which carries more power behind it than anything a junior lightweight has exhibited here in years.

But, because of Canzoneri's style of fighting, the Cuban probably will find it difficult to land. Tony distinctly is a body fighter and he plans to stay far enough inside the Cuban's right to be out of danger.

He learned much about handling a hard hitter in his two fights with Bud Taylor. The Italian earned a draw with Bud in the first fight but Taylor was given the decision in the second.

The winner of tonight's fight will be in line for a match with Ted Morgan, the junior lightweight champion.

DEMPSEY ORDERS A PUNCHING BAG; MAY FIGHT AGAIN

New York, Jan. 18. — (U.P.) — What would Jack Dempsey want with a punching bag and other training equipment if he didn't intend to fight again?

Dempsey has ordered a soft-surfaced punching bag and a treadmill walking machine sent to him at Miami Beach from a New York sporting goods company.

FIGHT RESULTS

Minneapolis, Jan. 18. — (U.P.) — Arman Emmanuel, San Francisco heavyweight, decisively defeated Harry Dillon, Winnipeg, in 10 rounds. Jimmy Gibbons, St. Paul, defeated Tommy Havel, Pine City, (6). Roy Michaelson, Minneapolis, middleweight, knocked out Red Carr, Winnipeg, in the second round of a scheduled 6-round bout.

EMANUEL BACKS UP IN FIGHT BUT DEFEATS DILLON

Minneapolis, Jan. 18. — (U.P.) — Although backing up during most of the fight, Armand Emmanuel, San Francisco light heavyweight, won an easy decision in ten rounds here last night over Harry Dillon, of Winnipeg.

Dillon kept rushing the coast fighter, but was unable to avoid a lightning fast and accurate left hand which Emmanuel displayed continuously.

Roy Michaelson, Minneapolis, middleweight, knocked out Red Carr, of Winnipeg, in the second round of the semi-final.

CAN MCCARTHY HANDLE HORNSBY?

THAT IS ONLY ONE OF PERPLEXING PROBLEMS OF BASEBALL

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

New York, Jan. 18. — Can Joe McCarthy handle Rogers Hornsby? That is only one of the perplexing problems baseball fans are discussing these days preparatory to the sixteen major league teams starting south and west to begin spring training.

If Hornsby and McCarthy hit it off together, the Chicago Cubs will be the club to beat in the National League pennant scramble. There are many fans who believe Hornsby will get into the same difficulties at Chicago that he did at St. Louis, New York and Boston and that he will wreck the Cubs' pennant hopes.

Another National League manager who will have his hands full the coming season is Billy Southworth, who will attempt to salvage the ball club wrecked by the New York Yankees in the world series and convert it into another pennant winner.

Having decided that the St. Louis Cardinals needed a hard-boiled manager to curb the disregard of the team's stars for training rules, Branch Rickey and Samuel Breadon proceeded to hire one of the easiest going players in baseball for the job. When he was with the New York Giants Southworth acquired a reputation as the nicest boy on the club.

Over in the American league Miller Huggins' path is not strewn with roses by any means. The mite manager is gambling on three repair-arms and a high-priced shortstop to hold the Yankees' powerful machine together another season.

2 HARD HITTERS CLASH AT GARDEN IN NEW YORK

RESULT MAY HAVE IMPORTANT BEARING ON HEAVYWEIGHT DIVISION

WINNER OF TONIGHT'S FIGHT MAY BE IN LINE TO SUCCEED LOUGHRAN

New York, Jan. 18. — (U.P.) — James J. Braddock broke Pete Latzo's jaw and knocked out Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City sensation who came to New York with a record of 55 consecutive victories.

What, then, can Braddock do against Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen (Wash. assassin, who knocked Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, down twice in the first round only to lost the decision after 15 rounds?

The answer will be supplied tonight in Madison Square Garden when these two hard-hitting light-heavyweights meet in a 10-round bout which may have an important bearing not only in the 175-pound division but the heavyweight division as well.

With Loughran about ready to forsake his light-heavyweight crown to campaign in the unlimited division, the winner of tonight's fight will be in direct line to succeed Loughran.

If Braddock can defeat Lomski, another James J. will be on a fair way to stardom. Braddock is only 23 and has won 18 of his 35 bouts by knockouts. He has lost two decisions, one to Joe Monte of Boston and the other to Joe Sekyra of Dayton.

Lomski has been idle recently but has been made an 8 to 5 favorite in the betting because of his speed and aggressiveness which may make it difficult for Braddock to ever land his right hand punch.

And Lyn Lary, the Oakland flash, lives up to his reputation Huggins' worries will be minimized.

Two other American league managers who will have to be burdens on their shoulders are Walter Johnson, making his debut at Washington, and Bucky Harris, who will attempt to get the Detroit Tigers out of the rut.

Harris has given the Tigers a thorough overhauling during the winter and it will be hard to recognize the club when it goes onto the field.

FULLER RETURNS TO SQUAD; CAPTAIN GUIN BELIEVED OUT FOR SEASON

Kasch's high school eagles will meet old rivals in the Crosby-Ironton squad this evening at the latter's gymnasium. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Many Brainerd fans will be present to cheer the locals in their uphill fight against the strong range five.

The line-up for the locals this evening is uncertain. Coach Kasch will take all men available on the trip and will give the second stringers an opportunity to play.

The Brainerd team will be considerably stronger than one week ago. Fuller will be eligible again tonight and will probably be eligible for the rest of the season because a new semester is at hand and a change in the number of studies to be carried will make that possible.

Brainerd plays Little Falls next Friday evening, January 25, at Little Falls, then travels to St. Cloud to meet the St. Cloud Tech High the following evening.

Captain Carol Guin was reported as still in uncertain condition. It is almost certain that he will be unable to play basketball this year because of effects of rheumatism. He was removed from the local hospital to his home this week.

Coach Kasch announced today that he would appoint different individuals before each game to captain the team in the absence of Guin.

By QUIN HALL

FRIDAY night at Madison Square Garden in New York City the fight fans will have another chance to take a look at James J. Braddock. On that occasion Braddock is scheduled to meet Leo Lomski in what should be a pretty hot evening's entertainment. This is the match that Detroit promoters made a play for, but Braddock insisted on sticking to Tom McArdle, the Garden matchmaker, who gave him his chance to meet Tuffy Griffiths.

That encounter with Griffiths did considerable toward pulling the Jersey scrapper out into the glare of the pugilistic limelight. Tuffy, the big Iowan, journeyed to New York highly touted as a second Jack Dempsey. He had the fans up and down the gay stretch known as Broadway all agog over his future and Brad was chosen for the slaughter. He would be good enough to give the ring addicts a real line on the ability of the new-comer. Such was the hook-up, but that evening there must have been a lot of static or something, because after Braddock had floored the husky Iowan five times in two rounds, Kid McPartland, the Big referee, put an end to the slaughter and another "second Dempsey" was sent slithering into the discard.

Prior to his meeting with Braddock, Tuffy was looked upon as a guy with great possibilities out in the Middle West where he had a string of fifty-six successive victories sprinkled with knockouts over such well known chin polishers as Mike McGigue, Joe Anderson and Tony Marullo. No wonder Griffiths was installed as a 1 to 4 favorite in his joust with James J. But something went cuckoo and now Tuffy is as forgotten as the days when your grandmother let her hair grow long.

But the bout served to strengthen the drawing power of another pugilistically famous James J. Young Braddock has been working in the squared circle for two years and a half, but he's been on the shelf through illness and a broken right hand during about half of that time. Braddock has the reputation of being the hardest hitter in the 175-pound class and it is said of him that he can drop anyone if he can connect on the button. He's a bad hombre to lose your fighter in the ring with and it seems that these things should have been carefully studied before they sent Tuffy against him in his first start in the Big Town. But, naturally, they fig-

Personal fans remember many scenes such as the above here at Yankee Stadium and Polo Grounds in New York, when "Babe" was visited by his wife and daughter, Dorothy. At right are three views of the couple at St. Vincent Hospital, where both were confined shortly before they reached parting of ways. They rarely met since 1925, "Babe" says.

By QUIN HALL

FRIDAY night at Madison Square Garden in New York City the fast fans will have another chance to take a look at James J. Braddock. On that occasion Braddock is scheduled to meet Leo Lomski in what should be a pretty hot evening's entertainment. This is the match that Detroit promoters made a play for, but Braddock insisted on sticking to Tom McArdle, the Garden matchmaker, who gave him his chance to meet Tuffy Griffiths.

That encounter with Griffiths did considerable toward pulling the Jersey scrapper out into the glare of the pugilistic limelight. Tuffy, the big lowan, journeyed to New York highly touted as a second Jack Dempsey. He had the fans up and down the gay stretch known as Broadway all agog over his future and Brad was chosen for the slaughter. He would be good enough to give the ring addicts a real line on the ability of the new-comer. Such was the hook-up, but that evening there must have been a lot of static or something, because after Braddock had floored the husky lowan five times in two rounds, Kid McFarland, the referee, put an end to the slaughter and another "second Dempsey" was sent slithering into the discard.

Prior to his meeting with Braddock, Tuffy was looked upon as a guy with great possibilities out in the Middle West where he had a string of fifty-six successive victories sprinkled with knockouts over such well known chin polishers as Mike McTigue, Joe Anderson and Tony Marullo. No wonder Griffiths was installed as a 1 to 4 favorite in his bout with James J. But something went cuckoo and now Tuffy is as forgotten as the days when your grandmother let her hair grow long.

But the bout served to strengthen the drawing power of another pugilistically famous James J. Young Braddock has been working in the squared circle for two years and a half, but he's been on the shelf through illness and a broken right hand during about half of that time. Braddock has the reputation of being the hardest hitter in the 175-pound class and it is said of him that he can drop anyone if he can connect on the button. He's a bad hombre to toss your fighter in the ring with and it seems that these things should have been carefully studied before they sent Tuffy against him in his first start in the Big Town. But, naturally, they figured that Tuffy was too hot for the Jersey scrapper and the odds show that the Griffiths management looked upon the melee as merely a workout for their battler. Tuffy may outlive the defeat, but it set him back considerably in his climb up the ladder to fame.

In the meantime another James J. looms up on the pugilistic horizon. Will he be the next heavyweight king? The mystic letter "J" has played a prominent part in the fate of the heavyweight division and "James J." has been highly favored in the past. Of the nine recognized world heavyweight champions in ring history, seven have had names beginning with "J." There have been three "James J.'s" on the royal register. Here's the list: John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, James J. Jeffries, Tommy Burns, Jack Johnson, Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey and James J. (Gene) Tunney. Now another James J. is knocking on the door of fame.

Braddock was born in New York City on December 6, 1905, and, incidentally, he was named for James J. Jeffries. Even that long ago his dad must have had fond hopes, and it isn't beyond the realm of possibilities that these hopes will some day be realized. The kid has a sock like the kick of a mule—and that counts in the ring game.

DEATH UNCOVERS RUTH LOVE TRAGEDY

baseball fans remember many scenes such as the above one at Yankee Stadium and Polo Grounds in New York, when "Babe" was visited by his wife and daughter, Dorothy. At right are three views of the couple at St. Vincent Hospital, where both were confined shortly before they reached parting of ways. They rarely met since 1925, "Babe" says.

COURTNEY SENTENCED AND NOW IN PRISON

To Serve Term in Stillwater Prison
Until Discharged Under Due Process of Law

CARRIES 5 TO 40 YEARS

Lamonte P. Koop Appears for Defendant, County Attorney A. J.
Sullivan for State

Deputy sheriffs, heavily armed, early this morning took John J.
Courtney to Stillwater to serve his sentence and by the time the Dispatch goes to press Courtney will have been assigned his cell in the institution.

At 5:50 P. M. yesterday afternoon
Judge Bert Fessler of the district court sentenced Courtney to prison at Stillwater until discharged under due process of law. He had been found guilty here January 9 with first degree bank robbery, in connection with the $35,000 robbery of the First National bank of Ironton in November, 1927. The penalty for the crime is 5 to 40 years.

When summoned before the court, Courtney was questioned as to his history, relatives, etc., and gave practically the same version he had given testifying in the case. He admitted a previous conviction and serving for grand larceny. He was in the army eight months. He has a wife, adopted child, a brother aged 33 and two younger sisters.

Lamonte P. Koop appeared in behalf of the defendant and addressing the court, said in part that he did not intend to go into the testimony which is fresh in the court's mind.

"While the jury returned a verdict of guilty," said Mr. Koop, "the defense respectfully asks the court to consider the nature of the testimony given. Courtney was convicted of robbery in the first degree, but it is apparent he took no part in the actual robbery or received any money from it. Mr. Courtney was convicted because the jury believed that Mr.
Courtney introduced Proctor to those who committed the actual robbery and the testimony in this regard was given by an apparent accomplice. In no part of the testimony does it appear that he (Courtney) was a vicious character.

"The defense desires to recognize the full effect of the verdict but nevertheless feels the testimony given on behalf of the state was hardly sufficient to warrant a maximum sentence. Considering the facts and circumstances, the defense believes that a minimum sentence be just and fair.

The defense is not certain what Mr.
Kinkaid will do in the matter and would appreciate anything that the court might do which would permit
M. F. Kinkead to make such further motion as he deems proper in the case."

County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan, appearing for the state, said he could not see any grounds that would justify his office in recommending a lesser penalty than the law permits.
Mr. Courtney had been given a fair trial. Courtney had had a former conviction.

Sentence was then imposed.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR:

MUCH against her will Irene Robeline is sitting up at the wake of Lilith Holden, pretty wife of the Minister Guinn Holden. Irene had feared the sharp tongue and witch's instinct for guessing facts that other people wished concealed that was part of Mattie Anson, the town gossip. In the heavy flower-laden atmosphere Irene guards her own secret as Will Lundy, the new doctor, listens to Art Rakestraw and Mattie discuss the beauty and coquetry that had been Lilith's. After every young fellow in town had proposed to her at least once, it was the minister she married, though "she didn't care for the poor sucker she'd hooked, but only the fish swimming in the sea." Whether or not the fellows already had girls mattered not at all to Lilith. "Just give me a little time," she had said, when taunted "to land" the new minister from Abby Whitaker. With the whole town for an audience Lilith pursued the minister, determined to break down his resistance. Her pride hurt, she appealed to his manhood, confessing her love for him. His answer was, "Do you mean it enough to marry me this morning?" Still thinking she could string him along, Lilith became Mrs. Guinn Holden. Then a year later came the baby and Lilith's death. Irene Robeline suffered silently as she listened to the story of Lilith's capture of Guinn Holden, the man she herself had loved and lost.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER VI.

IRENE ROBELINE lived across the street from the parsonage, and so she caught glimpses and echoes of much that went on over there. The pastor named his baby Lilith, and refused to turn her over to any of the family on either side. He'd take care of her himself, in his own home. Something might happen to her if he let her go away from him, he contended. The Ladies' Aid argued in vain eloquence, and Mattie Anson said, "He's mule stubborn. But what can you expect? Ain't he a man?"

He defended his views one day when he came across to see Irene's mother, who was laid up with inflammatory rheumatism.

"But you don't realize what it means to take care of a little baby," Irene expostulated.

"I can learn." His lips set firmly and he folded his arms. He stood by her mother's bedside. "I've got Aunt Viny to stay and run the house and take care of the baby. I'll supply the brain work for the job."

"It takes more brain power and more foot and hand power than any man thinks to bring up a baby. There'll be bottles to sterilize, for instance. You can't trust an old-fashioned, back-yard nigger to look after those things scientifically."

"Then I'll see to sterilizing the bottles."

"You'll have your hands full," Mrs. Robeline commented. "But you can learn."

"A woman's born knowing these things, I guess." His face softened, and then tightened with pain.

"Not a bit of it!" she scoffed. "Graveyards are full of mothers' mistakes. Use your mind, that's all, and come over here when you get stuck. I've brought up six of my own and have got a good stand of grandchildren."

"Thanks—I'll remember. I expect I'll make a pest of myself. My ignorance on the subject is bigger than all outdoors—but I can't give up my baby. I've got to look after Lilith!"

As days and weeks went on, his ignorance on the subject proved to be almost as extensive as he had said and the amused sympathy of the church centered about his efforts to look after Lilith. Irene kept up with his problems, and her vicarious sufferings were almost as great as his own. Men were so helpless where children were concerned. He was putting too great a burden on himself to do all this. How foolish of him not to let some woman in the family take the baby till she was older! How foolish, but how lovable!

"Taking care of a baby is harder than exegesis or homiletics," he mourned with a shake of his head one day when he came across the street for advice. "I know Greek roots—but what in thunder do you do with a baby when she cries?"

"That depends on what she's crying about."

He ruffled his hair. "How do I know? Aunt Viny pops a bottle in her mouth every time she yelps. But that doesn't seem logical to me."

Irene laughed. "She may be complaining because she's overfed, or maybe her food isn't the right sort."

He looked alarmed. "It's the formula the doctor gave me. Can't you trust a doctor?"

"Oh, he has to experiment."

"Aunt Viny patronizes me so," he complained. "Whenever I offer a suggestion, she says, 'Go 'way fum heah, boy. I was nussin' babies befo' you was bawn or thought of.'"

Irene laughed. It was so cheering to hear him able to speak humorously again.

"Aunt Viny knows the old-style fundamentals of baby care. But she has a scorn for anything medical science has discovered since the Civil War."

"She tells me it's nothing but Yankee tomfoolishness," he said. "Trouble with me is I don't know whether any one of her notions is inherited inspiration or fool ignorance that might be the death of the baby. How'm I going to find out? It's my job to take care of Lilith."

He looked so helpless that she was moved to comfort him. "Oh, you're learning fast."

Her eyelids fluttered down lest he see too much in her gaze. Her blush surged over cheek and throat and forehead, so that she felt sure he must notice—but he was watching Aunt Viny wheel a baby buggy up and down the sidewalk in front of his house, so he didn't observe.

Another day he came over, hatless and disturbed. "Colic," he panted, as he eased himself down in a rocking chair and mopped his forehead. "Aunt Viny says there's seven months' colic. I don't think either Lilith or I could stand it that long."

From across the street came the wail of a baby, in a sort of bubbling rise and fall, which reported to Irene that Aunt Viny was jouncing Lilith to quiet her.

"What are you doing for it?" "Walking the floor with it."

"Oh, your poor sermons!" He nodded. "Yes. And I can't find a thing about colic in Cruden's Concordance. That's all the place I know to look up anything."

"I suppose if you did find it, we'd have a sermon on it next Sunday."

He grinned. "Came pretty near praying about colic in church Sunday night. Just caught myself in time."

"Better make your prayers to the Ladies' Aid. They can help."

He lifted one agitated hand. "They all tell me different things. Mixed advice is bad, as Lilith and I've found out. I'd better concentrate on your mother's experience."

"Well, she hasn't buried any of her mistakes yet."

Irene began surreptitiously reading up on the ailments of infants, with special attention to colic. A man was the most helpless being in the world—more so than a baby even, because he didn't know it. A baby simply howled and let you wait on it, while a man tried to do for himself, and got things in a muss.

Lilith's colic all but broke up the church. The Ladies' Aid talked it over as they sewed on garments for the orphans, and the various members prescribed such a diversity of treatments that Lilith would certainly have died if her father had made test of them all on her. Each Aider urged that her own remedy be followed, and was incensed if it were not. The doctors offered masculine sympathy at their sessions; but they knew how much the pastor had suffered so they made no personal issue of the matter. Night after night, Irene could see the man's shadowy form behind the thin curtains as he walked up and down with the baby, singing now a hymn and now some foolish college song.

"Your pearly teeth are false, love; They rattle while you wait, love; Nut-brown maiden, you have such pearly, pearly teeth."

"Lilith's colic is sure going hard with the preacher," Mattie Anson said one day as she gossiped on Irene's front porch. "If she don't get over it soon we'll have to physic him. Looks like a worn-out telephone pole now, and as worried as if he haunts were after him."

"Yes, he does look worried."

"Funny how hard men take children, when they take 'em at all. Grieving after that flittery wife of his, too. Some folks don't know when the Lord's looking after 'em."

"It isn't always pearly."

"Now, you've perked up considerably, Irene, since you come home. Look as pretty as a pomegranate bloom. I reckon it's that new beau of yours."

"What?" she jerked, stiffening, on guard.

"Oh, maybe you think I don't know how that new doctor, Will Lundy, is wearing a path to your front porch. Haven't I two good eyes?"

"Oh!" she laughed, relaxing in relief. "Nonsense." What if she had been going to say—?

"That's all right, nothing to get flustered over," said Mattie with a yawn. "Beau company is a great beautifier. Nothing sets a girl off so like a steady. A beau is real becoming to any girl. You're getting along, too, Irene. Better not wait too long. Twenty-three now, ain't you?"

Irene laughed in amused tolerance. "Nobody in the town could fool you about anything, so why try?"

"Well, all I got today is, don't fiddle 'round too long. I notice that old age can be mighty lonesome if there's no man to fuss over. Men are troublesome critters, the good Lord that made 'em knows. But we don't know how to get along without 'em. They keep our tempers exercised and our minds on the jump, like the bull weevils do the farmers."

Irene laughed. It was so cheering to hear him able to speak humorously again.

"Aunt Viny knows the old-style fundamentals of baby care. But she has a scorn for anything medical science has discovered since the Civil War."

"She tells me it's nothing but Yankee tomfoolishness," he said. "Trouble with me is I don't know whether any one of her notions is inherited inspiration or fool ignorance that might be the death of the baby. How'm I going to find out? It's my job to take care of Lilith."

He looked so helpless that she was moved to comfort him. "Oh, you're learning fast."

Her eyelids fluttered down lest he see too much in her gaze. Her blush surged over cheek and throat and forehead, so that she felt sure he must notice—but he was watching Aunt Viny wheel a baby buggy up and down the sidewalk in front of his house, so he didn't observe.

Another day he came over, hatless and disturbed. "Colic," he panted, as he eased himself down in a rocking chair and mopped his forehead. "Aunt Viny says there's seven months' colic. I don't think either Lilith or I could stand it that long."

From across the street came the wall of a baby, in a sort of bubbling rise and fall, which reported to Irene that Aunt Viny was joining Lilith to quiet her.

"What are you doing for it?" "Walking the floor with it."

"Oh, your poor sermons!" He nodded. "Yes. And I can't find a thing about colic in Cruden's Concordance. That's all the place I know to look up anything."

"I suppose if you did find it, we'd have a sermon on it next Sunday."

He grinned. "Came pretty near praying about colic in church Sunday night. Just caught myself in time."

"Better make your prayers to the Ladies' Aid. They can help."

He lifted one agitated hand. "They all tell me different things. Mixed advice is bad, as Lilith and I've found out. I'd better concentrate on your mother's experience."

"Well, she hasn't buried any of her mistakes yet."

Irene began surreptitiously reading up on the ailments of infants, with special attention to colic. A man was the most helpless being in the world—more so than a baby even, because he didn't know it. A baby simply howled and let you wait on it, while a man tried to do for himself, and got things in a muss.

Lilith's colic all but broke up the church. The Ladies' Aid talked it over as they sewed on garments for the orphans, and the various members prescribed such a diversity of treatments that Lilith would certainly have died if her father had made test of them all on her. Each Aider urged that her own remedy be followed, and as increased if it were not. The doctors offered masculine sympathy at their sessions; but they knew how much the pastor had suffered, so they made no personal issue of the matter. Night after night Irene could see the man's shadowy form behind the thin curtains as he walked up and down with the baby, singing now a hymn and now some foolish college song.

"Your pearly teeth are false, love; they rattle while you wait, love; Nut-brown maiden, you have such pearly, pearly teeth; Nut-brown maiden, you have such pearly teeth!"

"Lilith's colic is sure going hard with the preacher," Mattie Anson said one day as she gossiped on Irene's front porch. "If she don't get over it soon we'll have to physic him. Looks like a worm-eaten telephone pole now, and as worried as if the haunts were after him."

"Yes, he does look worried." "Funny how hard men take children when they take 'em at all. Grieving after that flittery wife of his, too. Some folks don't know when the Lord's looking after 'em."

"It isn't always easy." "Now, you've perked up considerably, Irene, since you come home. Look as pretty as a pomegranate bloom. I reckon it's that new beau of yours."

"What?" she jerked, stiffening, on guard.

"Oh, maybe you think I don't know how that new doctor, Will Lundy, is wearing a path to your front porch. Haven't I two good eyes?"

"Oh," she laughed, relaxing in relief. "Nonsense. What if she had been going to say—?"

"That's all right, nothing to get flustered over," said Mattie with a yawn. "Beau company is a great beautifier. Nothing sets a girl off so like a steady. A beau is real becoming to any girl. You're getting along, too, Irene. Better not wait too long. Twenty-three now, ain't you?"

Irene laughed in amused tolerance. "Nobody in the town could fool you about anything, so why try?"

"Well, all I got to say is, don't fiddle 'round too long. I notice that old age can be mighty lonesome if there's no man to fuss over. Men are troublesome critters, the good Lord that made 'em knows. But we don't know how to get along without 'em. They keep our tempers exercised and our minds on the jump, like the boll weevils do the farmers."

Time and Eternity

Think not thy time short in this world since the world itself is not long. The created world is but a small parenthesis in eternity and a short interposition for a time, between such a state of duration as was before it and may be after it.—Browne
